

AI INCOME · BEGINNER

Start Making Money With AI

No code. No big budget. The exact first 14 days to your first sale.

The honest, plain-English answer to the five questions every beginner asks — plus the exact 14-day plan to your first sale. No code. No big budget.

The 5 questions, answered straight

1. Where do I even start?

With ONE thing you can sell. Not a course, not a funnel, not a logo. A simple digital product (a guide, a template, a prompt pack) that solves one specific problem for one specific person. You'll pick it on Day 1 below.

2. Do I need to be technical or know how to code?

No. Everything in this guide is copy, paste, and click. The AI does the heavy lifting; free no-code tools handle the rest.

3. How much can I realistically make, and how fast?

Be realistic and you'll actually get there. Most beginners see their first $250–$500 within a few weeks. With a small email list of 1,500–2,000 people in a niche, a $37–$67 product can do around $1,000 in a launch week. Slow is normal. Quitting is the only real failure.

4. Can I start with no money?

Yes. Free AI tools, a free storefront, and a free email tool are enough to make your first sales. You reinvest profit later — never rent you don't have.

5. How long until I see results?

If you ship something in the next 14 days and put it in front of people, weeks — not months. The people who wait for 'perfect' are the ones who never get paid.

Your 14-day plan to the first sale

Days 1–2 · Pick your lane

Choose one niche you can speak to and one problem inside it. Write it as: 'I help [who] do [what].'

Example: 'I help busy parents plan meals in 20 minutes a week.'

→ Finish this sentence today: I help _____ do _____.

Days 3–5 · Make one simple product

Use AI to draft a short, genuinely useful guide, planner, checklist, or prompt pack that solves that one problem. Keep it tight — 5 to 20 pages of real value beats 100 pages of filler.

Days 6–7 · Package it

Give it a benefit-driven title, a clean cover, and a price. Start with a $9 'tripwire' — cheap enough to be an easy yes, valuable enough to build trust.

Days 8–10 · Set up the shop

Create a free Stan Store or Payhip page, connect Stripe/PayPal, and upload your product for instant delivery. Add a short sales description: the problem, the promise, what's inside, and a clear button.

Days 11–14 · Get it in front of people

Post 3 short pieces of content a day about the problem you solve, each ending with a link to your $9 offer. Tell your existing contacts. Answer questions where your buyers already hang out.

→ Ship the product and make it public by Day 14 — even if it feels 80% ready. You'll improve it from real feedback.

Pick your income model

- Digital products — sell guides, templates, and packs once, deliver forever. Best first model.
- Faceless content — grow an audience with short videos, sell products to it.
- Freelance with AI — offer a done-for-you service (content, design, automations) and let AI make you fast.
- Affiliate — recommend tools you use and earn a cut; great add-on once you have an audience.

Free tools to start (zero budget)

- AI: ChatGPT, Claude, or Gemini — free tiers are plenty to begin.
- Store: Stan Store or Payhip — instant digital delivery + checkout.
- Email: MailerLite or Beehiiv — build the list that becomes your real asset.
- Design: Canva free — covers, mockups, and simple graphics.

The 5 mistakes that keep beginners broke

- Learning forever and never shipping. Ship first, learn from sales.
- Building for 'everyone.' Narrow it down — one person, one problem.
- Pricing from fear. A $9 yes beats a $99 maybe. Start small, climb later.
- No email capture. Every visitor should have a way to join your list.
- Quitting at week 3. The first sale is the hardest; it gets easier fast.

Your next step

You now have the plan. Pick your lane today, and let the next 14 days do the work. When you're ready to move faster, the Income HQ store has done-for-you products, prompt packs, and AI employees that hand you the shortcuts — the Anti-PLR Standard, always ready to sell.

→ Do the very first line now: I help _____ do _____. Everything starts there.